Hello again everyone.

It's a leap year! And our Limpet goes out on February 29th! The times they are a changing, sang Bob Dylan. Come gather 'round people, Wherever you roam, And admit that the waters Around you have grown. And accept it that soon, You'll be drenched to the bone If your time to you is worth savin' Then you better start swimmin' or you'll sink like a stone

For the times they are a-changin' Come mothers and fathers, Throughout the land, And don't criticize, What you can't understand Your sons and your daughters, Are beyond your command, Your old road is rapidly agin' Please get out of the new one if you can't lend your hand, For the times they are a-changin'

The book of Ecclesiastes chapter 3 reminds us there is a time for everything, whether its birth, death, planting, harvesting, holding on or letting go. Change is part of life, and we have to face whatever it throws at us, as some on the island know fully just now. Our church here and across Orkney and Scotland is facing changed times: for example one of my previous congregations, in King Edward in Aberdeenshire has just held its last service as the congregation join in with others in nearby Turriff [King Edward is where Alex French and Alan Twatt who come to Stronsay Harvest Home, farmed]. I feel for them yet they remain positive

Our church here is facing not closure, but big changes as the 19 Church of Scotland Congregations across Orkney are due to unite into one larger church under one overall governing body, with local offshoot 'branches', like here in Stronsay. Our congregation here formally will have to vote on the changes proposed in mid-May, and they will not actually happen probably till later summer. For the community, the church and life in the church hopefully will just seem like before, so worry not. But our organisation will involve much change including more sharing with other churches across Orkney and hopefully a bit of reduced administration burden on our leaders here.

Changes come as part of life; we just have to cope, adapt, move on and not give up, but being prepared for them helps. Its already the period of Lent, when we remember how Jesus journeyed through trials and temptations in the desert and grew stronger to prepare himself for the further trial to come, and grow in knowing that amidst the trials, God was at work in Spirit supporting him. I suppose that is what we must do facing whatever changes and trials we face. Last Sunday we were helped by sharing thoughts of Alexei Navalny who died in Russian prison recently. He said being a Christian helped him clarify the right thing to do and keep doing it, not give up. Its soon to be Easter, when we remember the positive change that can happen, out of apparent disaster, how in the face of death and despair, new hope, spirit, life emerges for those with enough openness to believe like Alex Navalny.

The famous Serenity Prayer used by Alcoholics Anonymous says something like; God, grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can, and the wisdom to know the difference. Prayer helped Jesus not least when he was facing his biggest time of trial. No matter who we are, prayer can help us even just settle our fears, sift our priorities and gain insight and peace. With our Easter newsletter delivered around the community you will find copies of the booklet 'Trypraying' TryPraying is part of a national movement, which simply encourages people to try what it says on the tin; wherever you are, God can hear your prayers- try it!.

Specific events can also help. For example, our half- hour service as part of the global World Day of Prayer starts on Friday 1st March at 2pm; all are very welcome, as we are led in a service prepared for us by Palestinian Christian women. Its an opportunity to share prayer, concern, faith, hopes with each other and with God, and listen for what more we can do.

May God bless you in the way of the Serenity Prayer as you face changes in your life.

David

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER 2024—FRIDAY 1 MARCH

World day of prayer 2024
Written by the Christian women of Palestine
Friday March 1st at 2.00 p.m.
Please come and join us at Moncur Memorial Church as we celebrate the annual World day of prayer.

This year it has been written by the women of Palestine. The service will have been planned and written well before any of the current problems, but it makes an ideal opportunity to join with people throughout the world, to remember and pray for that region.

The service will only take about half an hour and is open to anybody. We would love to see you

A FARM IN THE NORTH

I'm Nathan, a self-taught blacksmith honing my craft for the past five years. My work spans various materials – bone, horn, leather, hide, and of course, metal. With a knack for learning quickly and a creative spirit, I consider myself a bit of a jack of all trades, deeply passionate about crafting.

Nestled on a remote island in the Orkney Isles, I share this five-acre haven with my wife and family. Together, we tend to our orkneyboreray sheep, goats, and chickens, cultivating what food we can with grand plans to expand our farm further. I find joy in simple pleasures – peace and quiet, hearty meals, the scent of earth and rain, and the satisfaction of seeing the fruits of my labour.

Fuelled by a fascination for ancient histories and civilizations, I'm a bit like a dragon, hoarding books that sit as treasures of knowledge. After all, you never know when one might come in handy! I also collect Hand tools to broaden my tool range to work with as I'm passionate about hand crafted and love the life and character of old tools.

Music is my constant companion in the stone workshop where I create; I have an eclectic taste, playing tunes loud to keep me company and motivated.

I've also launched my own YouTube channel where I showcase a plethora of my craftworks creations. Additionally, there's a Patreon page for those who wish to support my dreams and craft. In return, you get exclusive behind-the-scenes glimpses of farm and craft life, blacksmithing tips, a farm newsletter, delicious farm recipes, informative posts delving into the world of runes, regular updates, and much much more. Thank you for being here, reading this and supporting me, I couldn't do this without you all, so I extend my heartfelt gratitude to you.

Records of a Bygone Age Stronsay Schools Part 4 – Free education for all

Part 3 of this story painted a picture of an efficient and well run school under Alexander Learmonth's headship, but one with an ongoing problem with the poor attendance record of many pupils. We move on now to 1887:

A school holiday was declared on 17th June 1887 in honour of Queen Victoria's Golden Jubilee, with all the schools on the island also being closed the following Monday where the Jubilee was celebrated by an island picnic at Ward Hill.

More holidays were to follow, with the school closed for the annual United Presbyterian Church picnic on 8th August and then again on the 12th, 13th and 16th, this being deemed as suitable dates for those wishing to experience the joys of the 'Kirkwall Fair'.

This fair was the annual 'Lammas Fair' held in Kirkwall and, at that time, lasted a full week. No doubt a goodly number of islanders would have taken advantage of this opportunity as their annual holiday, with a report of that 1887 Fair recording that:

'The streets have been more or less crowded at all times of the day. It is believed, indeed, that on no previous year have so many persons availed themselves of the holiday. The Orcadia brought many hundreds from the North Isles, while the Lizzie Burroughs did her best to keep up with the traffic from Rousay, Egilsay, Evie and other place in her circuit.' The report then continued 'On the usual stance at Sunnybank peripatetic showmen, with the attendant tribe of hacksters, conjurors and minstrels, mustered in good force.'

A good inspection report was given that year once again, although the inspector noted that 'A new set of maps, a globe and inkwells for the desks should be procured. The schoolroom, which is large and without a ceiling, is insufficiently heated. The roof is not rainproof above the fireplace and the water runs down the walls. The playground is unenclosed and the offices have no separate access for boys and girls.

It would seem that either the problem of an unenclosed playground may have been raised before or that the School Board moved remarkably quickly as, very soon after this 1887 report, the Board agreed that each of the three island schools should have their playground enclosed by a stone dyke, subject to the agreement of landowner Colonel Balfour. Mr Balfour was quite happy for this to go ahead but wished to make it clear that he still retained ownership of the flagstaff at the Central School.

In June 1888 tenders were sought for enclosing the playground at the Central School and building two 'offices' to be used as toilets. This was fairly specific in its terms, with the area to be enclosed and the specifications of the wall described as:

'Bounded on the north by the boundary wall of Hunton, passing south around the east end of the school round the flagstaff and westward to the public road, then northward to join on to the wall of the Hunton farm, as the same will be pointed out by the clerk to the School Board. A stone wall 3 feet 9 inches high on the west side, the walls on the remaining sides to be 3 feet 6 inches high, all the walls to have a scarcement 2 feet 6 inches wide and 3 inches thick. Wall 2 feet at bottom and 1 foot 4 inches at top and finished with a rough hammer dressed cope 12 inches high and the full width on the top set in and jointed over with lime, all to be of good sound durable stones and all to be finished in a proper workmanlike manner. An entrance gate 8 feet wide with a pillar 3 feet square and 6 feet high on each side of the entrance gate, the pillars to be covered with a stone not less than 4 inches in thickness and to overslip the pillar 3 inches and finished with a boulder not less than 1 foot in diameter. The foundations to be laid on a hard level square cleared out across and any irregularity in the ground levelled with the general run of the surface. Lime: not more than half sand to be put in lime and the jointing on the top to be mixed with rough sand or fine gravel properly sifted.'

A separate specification for the erection of the two offices then followed:

'10 feet inside with a wall between 2 feet thick so that each office will have 6 feet clear space inside measurement and have two seats in each. Height of front wall 6 feet inside, clear space, height of middle wall to be 11 feet, all to be built dry and jointed outside with lime and plastered inside. Couples 2 ½ x 5 inches and 20 inches apart, gables with built skew. Doors 2 feet 9 inches by 5 feet. Jambs 2 ½ by 2 inches. Doors 1 ½ inches thick with 4 back bars and ventilators, hinges and handles. Floored with pavement from wall to wall. Courts in front: 5 feet high and 4 feet wide (one end and front), floored with pavement. A cement gutter 2 inches deep and 6 inches wide in a round curve, stone front and wall cemented 3 feet up. Sarked with ¾ inch wood and welsh slate of good quality 18 inches by 10 inches, shouldered in lime mortar. Foundations to be cleaned out level. Scarcement to be sunk 3 inches and the floor on top of the scarcement. All rubbish to be cleared off the premises. Wall from offices to coal shed to be in height level with the coal shed. The whole to be dry built and jointed. Two gates 3 feet wide hung on oak post with jamb on other side between the offices and the boundary wall of Hunton.'

Tenders for the complete job were received from James Chalmers and Caleb Dickson for £75 and Joseph Bews for £54-7/6 while a tender was received from William Moodie to build the stone wall only at 5/- per fathom. Mr Bews' tender was accepted, with the work being completed by June 1889.

The 1888 HMI report again gave praise to teachers and scholars, stating that 'The school continues to be taught with vigour and ability; and if the efforts of the teachers were only backed by the enforcement of regular attendance its condition would soon leave little to be desired.'

In what could well have been a response to this criticism and also serves to illustrate the problems of the times, in April 1889 the Clerk was instructed to make public notice that no children would be allowed to go herding unless they had passed the third standard and were over 10 years of age otherwise the parents would be proceeded against. (continued on next page)

William Moodie, the Compulsory Officer, was still finding it difficult to persuade some parents of the necessity of sending their children to school. In most instances a visit from the officer was enough to ensure compliance but this wasn't always enough.

In a specific case soon after Thomas Fotheringhame, a carter in Whitehall Village, was instructed to appear before the Board for neglecting to educate his children, 12 year old Thomas and 10 year old James. The clerk was also instructed to write to the person employing these children to inform him that if they weren't sent home to their parents he would be prosecuted for employing them illegally. Even this course of action failed to have the desired effect and, after repeated failed attempts to ensure that Mr Fotheringhame sent his two children to school, it was agreed that there was no option but to prosecute Mr Fotheringhame before the Sheriff at an early date. Whether this came to pass or whether Mr Fotheringhame complied by sending his children to school before he went to trial isn't recorded.

Many of the older scholars took a holiday on 28th June 1889 to attend the annual Review of Volunteers. This review was of the Stronsay unit of the Royal Artillery Volunteers which had been formed in 1865 and, with their Drill Hall built a few years previously right next door to the school, would have meant a very short journey for the pupils.

Also in 1889 salaries for the Central School teachers were clarified to show the headmaster receiving £30 for teaching specific subjects and a further £70 for teaching 'standard work' while the assistant teacher and sewing mistress received £12 for standard work and an additional £8 for giving instruction in sewing.

Miss Shearer had resigned from the latter post in August 1889 and, before leaving, was presented with a work box and writing case by her pupils as a mark of their appreciation. The vacant post was quickly advertised, looking for a certificated teacher at a salary of £40, with her role to also include industrial work. With no suitable applicants the post was re-advertised in March 1890, offering an increased salary of £45, and Miss Robina Fraser, fresh from teacher training college in Aberdeen, was appointed to the post. This appointment was quite short lived, with Miss Fraser resigning in December and Miss Barbara Mary Duthie taking up the post in January 1891.

Another landmark in Scottish education, and arguably the greatest ever, was to be reached in 1890 when, with the passage of another Education Act, school fees were abolished. Now, for the first time, all children, regardless of sex or status, were enabled to enjoy free education.

The school report of 1890 was again satisfactory, with the inspector noting that the interior of the school room had been greatly improved by the roof being closed in with a wooden ceiling, adding that if a partition were thrown across the school room to obviate the noise and distraction caused by two teachers in the same room its capabilities would be still further increased.

It seems this recommendation was again acted upon fairly quickly and a division made across the room to separate the two teachers and classes. This was of great benefit to pupils and teachers but also necessitated the installation of a stove in Miss Duthie's room to provide some warmth in that area.

More changes were to follow when, following a dispute with the School Board, Alexander Learmonth tendered his resignation on a point of principle. This centred around the Board's wish to provide the teaching of at least four additional specialist subjects to older pupils and Mr Learmonth's insistence that, unless additional resources were provided and pupil attendance much improved, then teachers had no hope of teaching these subjects effectively and that their priority had to lie with teaching the basics well.

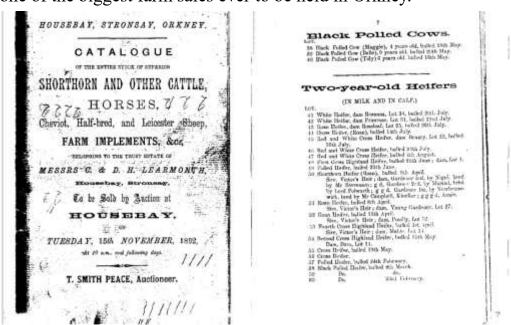

Despite requests from parents to reconsider, Mr Learmonth couldn't be swayed and moved on in September 1891. Before he left, 12 year old James Gorie, on behalf of all the pupils, made a moving speech before presenting Mr Learmonth with what was described as 'a splendid watch', with Mrs Learmonth being given 'a fine gold Albert' before their departure from the island. Members of the School Board were noticeable by their absence at this presentation.

William Ledingham from Buckie was quickly appointed as his replacement, taking up duties in November that year.

Numbers on the roll are given in February 1891 as being 46 at the North, 104 at the Central, 48 at the South and 8 in Papay, a total of 206 plus several 'defaulters' (who weren't attending school but should have been.) In March the following year numbers were given as being 56 at the North, 93 at the Central, 51 at the South and 7 on Papa Stronsay, a total of 207. It's unlikely the total roll would ever have been much higher than this, although numbers were seldom given in records still available.

Another Parliamentary election was held in 1892, meaning that the school was shut on 25th and 26th July to allow voting to take place. Mr Lyell, the Liberal candidate and sitting MP, was again victorious.

The log entry on 18th November 1892 notes that 'Attendance would have been much better had it not been for a sale at Housebay which lasted for 3 days and took many of the children away.' This sale had been brought about by the Learmonth family leaving the farm of Housebay after being tenants there for almost 50 years and was thought at the time to be one of the biggest farm sales ever to be held in Orkney.

Part of the catalogue for the sale at Housebay, possibly the biggest farm sale ever to be held in Orkney

In January 1893 it seems there must have been some dispute over access rights to water as the Clerk reported to the Board that the well belonging to the Central School had been filled up with stones, stating that it had been reported to him that it had been so treated by Mr Meil's servant. (Mr Meil was tenant of the neighbouring farm of Samson's Lane and the well would in all probability have been on his property.) The Clerk was instructed to get the Officer to examine the well and find who had filled it with stones, with a further instruction to give notice to the perpetrator that the well must be restored to the condition it was in previously within eight days or legal action would be taken to ensure its reinstatement. These actions must have been successful as no more mention is made of it.

A note in the log for May 1893 records that all the boys who had been studying Latin had given up the subject, leaving 4 girls to continue the course. On being asked why they had given up the course we are told that the universal reason given was 'Father says'!

After only 18 months in post Mr Ledingham resigned in April 1893, to be replaced by Duncan Macpherson in July that same year.

In another change of staff Barbara Duthie resigned in July 1893 and, after an advertisement for the post drew no suitable applicants, Agnes Tolmie, who had been teaching in Papa Stronsay, was appointed as interim teacher. Miss Tolmie was the daughter of Margaret Tolmie, headmistress at the North School.

The HMI inspection in 1892 had been less than satisfactory, although the inspector was happy to apportion some of the blame to the poor attendance due to an influenza epidemic. This was to be followed by a scathing report the following year with the school inspector identifying failings in just about every department, a situation which he blamed almost entirely on previous changes of teacher, with the work suffering accordingly. Commenting on Reading Writing and Arithmetic he rather worryingly proposed that, 'if good work in this direction is to be done the instruction should be confined to the more promising pupils.'

By October 1893 Mr Macpherson, the new headmaster, seemed to be breathing new life into the school, where it was noted that a small German class had been formed to add to the Latin and French classes already available and that one boy was currently reading the epic Latin poem, Virgil's Aeneid.

The following month, on 3rd November, the headmaster noted that 'The disturbing elements this week were rough weather and public roups.'

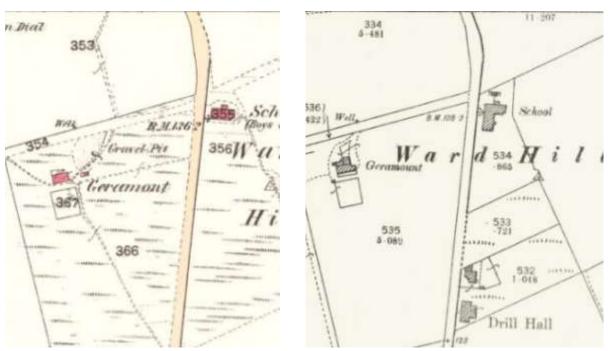

These public roups (or auctions) would have been taking place at that time of year as it was at Martinmas on 11th November that so many tenancies and contracts ended and tenants and workers moved elsewhere, often selling off much of their stock, equipment and household goods before they moved on. Martinmas was one of the four old Scottish Quarter Days or 'term days' and the one where by tradition most terms of tenancy and contracts of employment began and ended. Attendance at such a roup, with all the excitement and camaraderie it entailed, would no doubt have held more attraction than a day's study for many of the older pupils!

Agnes Tolmie, who had been acting as interim teacher since the summer of 1893, came to the end of her contract in January 1894 when Irish born Miss Jessie Smith, fresh from teacher training college, took up the post.

Attendance figures, as always, were an ongoing concern in 1894, with pupils engaged in farm duties and kelp work through the spring and early summer, followed by harvest work and tattie lifting later in the year where Mr Macpherson recorded that 'Harvest operations are in full swing; consequently the attendance is but meagre '. The log also noted that 'a boy who played the truant was smartly punished', while another entry told of two of the boys engaged in reading Xenophon's Greek classic Anabasis – surely two ends of the spectrum.

The school was to close early one day in July 1894 to allow the walls to be white-washed and floors scrubbed in preparation for an inspection the following week, an inspection that showed a remarkable improvement from the previous two. The inspector's report stated that 'The school, since it came under the charge of the present teachers, has risen very markedly in efficiency.' before going on to praise the majority of the pupils' work and praising the tact and intelligence with which Miss Smith was working in the Junior department, her work only being hampered, he stated, by the overcrowding caused by lack of adequate space. He went on to commend the School Board's early proposals to erect an additional classroom for the younger children. These proposals quickly turned into concrete plans and, with a tender of £220 for the project being submitted by James Chalmers and accepted by the Board, work was soon to commence.

A year on and the 1895 inspection produced another glowing report but again noting the overcrowding, soon to be rectified with the erection of the new classroom which was nearing completion at that time.

Compare the 1879 map on the left with the map from 1900 on the right. The second map shows the school around twice the size, and with the Drill Hall and Drill Cottage having been built in the interim period. Geramont has also been extended considerably.

The operation of a joint School Board for Eday and Stronsay had, ever since its inception, been causing difficulties for the Board, both through the geographical difficulties of getting members from both islands to meet in one place and with the difficulties in sharing funds and resources in a way that was seen to be reasonable to all parties. For some time past this joint Board had been making representations to the Education Department to split the Board into two separate entities, one for each island, and this was eventually agreed in July 1895, with the first meeting of the new Board specifically for Stronsay being held in October that year.

Among the new Board's first duties was the appointment of Gracie M Brown of Hillhead in Glasgow to the teacher's post at the South School at a salary of £55 with a free house, with her sister Elsie being appointed as second Assistant Teacher at the Central School with a salary of £50, with both being granted travelling expenses of £1/17/-(£1.85p).

In February 1896 a letter of resignation was received from head teacher Mr Macpherson. As he was obviously a very able and respected teacher, members of the School Board decided that this letter should be left on the table and agreed that they should meet with Mr Macpherson to offer him an increase of £10 to his salary. By the following month Mr Macpherson had agreed to remain in his present post but drew the Board's attention to the unsatisfactory state of the schoolhouse. On inspection only minor defects were found and quickly rectified.

The Board's faith in Mr Macpherson seemed to be wholly justified when the report of the 1896 school inspection was submitted to them. This report, the first since the new classroom and additional teacher were in place, lauded praise on the teachers, on the standard of their teaching and of the pupils' learning. The report the following year continued in the same vein, stating 'This is a very fine example of a well-staffed and well taught island school.' before going on to say that 'In Latin, French and Mathematics the training is most valuable, being in point of accuracy and thoroughness distinctly superior to what one finds in the average rural school.'

A whooping cough epidemic again hit the school from October to December 1896, with 63 of the pupils being infected and each one excluded for a full month before being allowed to return to school.

In November 1896 it was noted that Eliza Lennie had been appointed as a monitor, with her salary given as £1. Perhaps the savings from this less than extravagant salary helped offset the purchase of a new piano at a cost 'not to exceed £20.'

There was to be some welcome news for the pupils when all were given a day's holiday on 2nd April 1897 in honour of Rev Joseph Caskey's Golden Jubilee as minister to the Established Church in Stronsay. In a move which may not have found universal favour with pupils the school was then opened on Saturday so that Friday's work could be completed, although the pupils' good fortune returned with another day's holiday granted on 22nd June as part of the celebrations to mark Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee.

Stephen Clackson's Letter from School Place

A monthly report from your councillor, who's been working to improve road safety for our island children.

20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph—20mph

The first 20mph speed-limit signs are appearing in the Isles! It is satisfying to see my Notice of Motion of 7th Dec 2021, and the desire of island communities for many years, at last becoming a physical reality. Thankfully, I was able to counter the attempt last summer to jeopardise the project (which I wouldn't have been able to do, had the folk of the North Isles not re-elected me in May 2022!). Hopefully, all of Orkney's island schools will have their 20mph limits in place by this summer, raising the standard of road safety for island schoolchildren to the level long enjoyed by those on the Orkney Mainland, and representing the norm almost everywhere else in the country.

A hiatus in council meetings conveniently coincided with the fortnight around the celebration of my father-in-law's 90th birthday in Germany. He was presented with flowers by the Bürgermeisterin (a role I've performed myself from time to time in Orkney). I attended the meetings of the Ferry Services Transport Forum and Air Services Transport Forum from Germany by "Teams", and the Internet link was better than I've experienced from Sanday!

Heavy snow stopped some members and officers from attending the meeting of the Education, Leisure & Housing Committee in person, but I was there. I asked if we could have a full Island Communities Impact Assessment next time early learning and childcare (ELC) is reported, as currently these services are limited on some islands (in terms of suitable accommodation and workforce), and councillors need more details.

At the meeting of the Monitoring & Audit Committee, the head teacher of Eday School was praised for her hard work implementing the improvements "required to enhance the effectiveness of the framework of governance, risk management and control." I visited the school last May, where I saw the good work being done by the staff there.

OIC's new chief executive, Oliver Reid is working his way around Orkney and getting to know the county. Ute and I gave him a brief tour of Sanday between planes. We introduced him to various people, showed him some of the island's facilities, and discussed community concerns. I believe the next island on his list is Eday.

At the meeting of the Policy & Resources Committee, my amendment was successful to retain the second-home council tax discount exception of 50% (that I instigated 5 years ago) which applies where a person's sole or main residence in Orkney is separated from their place of work by a body of water, the transport provision over which does not permit daily commuting between their sole or main residence and their place of work, and where they occupy a second home in Orkney to enable them to maintain that employment. This will protect those eligible from a quadrupling of the council tax on that second home, and keep viable their work arrangements that make it possible for them to stay in the Isles and contribute to the sustainability of the communities there. I am grateful to Cllr Kristopher Leask for seconding my amendment and to the other seven councillors who voted for it.

Other meetings I've attended at School Place include a budget seminar and a confidential members' briefing.

This month we have said "Gudbuy T' James" and "Hello Heather" as Leader of Orkney Islands Council.

Cllr Dr Stephen Clackson

Member for the North Isles Ward, Depute Convener Orkney & Shetland VJB

WANTED—INFORMATION

re. history of SS Athenia life-boat, now at Seafield, Stronsay.

Can anyone help in establishing the identity of a Stronsay resident who actually lived in the SS Athenia converted lifeboat on the foreshore at Seafield, during the years 1960-1980 (very approximate) together with his sheep!?

This information came from Mr Thomas Shearer, who lived at Seafield for many years from about 1983 - 2002, and who now lives in Kirkwall. He cannot remember this other man's name, and whilst it does not effect the wartime history of the lifeboat, it adds an interesting dimension to its post-war history.

Any information would be gratefully appreciated, thank you. Brian Crowe

FOR SALE

White Citroen Berlingo diesel van, MOT July 2024, 2007 Reg. £850. Will deliver to Stronsay. Phone Ken on 01856 841487 or 07939 304 766.

RECYCLED CARDBOARD LOGS

Winter is coming, the nights are getting colder, and the recycling centre has plenty of recycled cardboard logs. They are a bargain at only £7.00 for 30 logs. Available at the recycling centre or call Viv on 207.

VAN AVAILABLE FOR CHARITY WORK

The Pomona Prefect logo peedie red van is available for charity work on the island if anyone needs a man and a van and wants to help the island reach the target. Saturdays service and cost for this is suggested as £10 per hour min donation for half hour units. All to the Stronsay Defib fund. No live animals, persons transported or dirty, sloppy stuff carried. Limited load and not a taxi service. This is a temporary thing to raise money and not a challenge to any services on the island. Call Julie for all taxi work and Sinclair Haulage for freight!

Also, if anyone needs their car karcher jet washed and vaccuming and then can do at Ellerslie as you pass for a donation to same Defib Fund. Cost is £10 per basic body wash and wheels rinsed and boot/inside vacced. Limited to cars. No monster trucks, panel vans, lorries or camper vans sorry.

This charity service will be hopefully available until there are enough defib machines in position with the people trained to cover us all 24/7. Availability is limited to Saturdays.

Any questions and to book give me a call.

Stronsay at War

The Stronsay Heritage Society is planning to create a display and accompanying booklet for the Stronsay Heritage Centre to document life in Stronsay during the First and Second World Wars.

We are hoping that folks both in and outwith Stronsay will send us copies/scans/photographs of the following types of items:

- Written memories or diaries (of life in Stronsay or from Stronsay folk experiencing life elsewhere because of the war)
- Photos (of Stronsay or of Stronsay folk)
- Letters
- Postcards
- · Memorabilia or Souvenirs
- · Ration Cards
- · Recipes or household hints
- Fashion
- Products/Labels/Advertisements from local businesses
- Invoices/Receipts
- · Certificates or Awards
- · Programmes of Events, Fundraisers or Appeals
- Newspaper clippings about Stronsay

We can also borrow your originals and scan them ourselves if that's easier for you.

Naturally, if you'd like to donate any wartime-related artefacts or original photos to the Heritage Centre, we'd be very glad to receive them.
