ROBIN & JENNIFER’S WEDDING

Orkney Ferries amended their timetable for Saturday 17th April so that folk from Eday could attend the wedding and get back to Eday on the same day. However, the cancellation of all flights into and out of Kirkwall meant that quite a few folk from Robin’s family were unable to attend the wedding. Fortunately Jennifer’s family arrived just before the flight cancellations began. The wedding party consisted of Hazel Shearer and George Sloan-Stanley.

Jennifer wore a champagne silk dress with a jewelled lace coat and train which were replaced by a lace bolero for the evening dance; the menfolk wore thistle buttonholes and pale purple ties.
THE OLD MANSE—PROGRESS REPORT APRIL 2010

After not putting in a update last month, we feel as though we have made quite a lot of progress. We have plaster-boarded the ceiling on the top floor and are now in the process of working out where partitions and plumbing will be going. We have also plaster-boarded the ceilings in the family bathroom and our en-suite and are again planning the layout. We have had to use pink fire-proof plaster-board on the stairs and most of this is now in place, which has enabled us to get the stairs in. So no more ladders! Thankfully the stairs fitted and look amazing and we were given some old carpet to use to protect them. We have put some water pipe in place and look forward to fitting the bathrooms. It really is beginning to look like a house again.

STRONSAY GAMES CLUB ARE "FIT 4 IT!"

On Saturday 24th April 21 young people and leaders from Stronsay's Friday Night Games Club travelled into the Picky centre to compete in the Orkney Association of Youth Clubs annual sporting competition "Fit 4 it!" This involved clubs from all over Orkney competing in various sports in the age groups of 12 and under, and 13 and over. The emphasis of the competition is on sportsmanship and taking part—meeting new friends and renewing previous friendships. As always Stronsay's young folk displayed excellent behaviour and were a credit to themselves and great representatives for the island. We were also delighted to see some of the older members of the Games Club now taking on leadership roles within the group. Everyone performed really well in all their events with winning performances for Keith Holland (over 13 boys darts); Andrew Fraser and Natalie Rose (under 12 mixed pool); Natalie Rose (table tennis under 12 girls); Norman Chalmers and Janet Holland (over 13 mixed badminton); Norman Chalmers and Janet Holland (over 13 mixed darts); and Craig Stout (under 12 boys darts). They won individual medals and a selection of sporting goods to be used at Games Club, including a dart board, darts, table tennis set, weights, etc.

We would like to thank everyone who took part and also our helpers, not forgetting the Stronsay School and the Sports Club for loan of the kit. Games Club continues on a Friday night in the hall: 8—10pm for ages 10 and up. All welcome!

JOHN HOLLOWAY’S BIRD REPORT MARCH—APRIL

The first Pied Wagtails of the year were seen in mid-March when Leslie Miller reported seeing a Canada Goose at Clestrain on several dates - a frustrating species, as many seen in the UK have escaped - or been released - from private collections of wildfowl in Britain and elsewhere in Europe. The first westerly gale since late Autumn swept across the island on 19th following a very unusual winter. A few thrushes were moving north by this time and the Rock Doves in our byre were already sitting on eggs.

The first Chiffchaff was seen on 23rd March when 20 Pintail were on the Bu Loch and 25 Long-tailed Ducks in Mill Bay along with two long-staying Slavonian Grebes. Goldcrest and Black Redstart were both seen at Dale on 26th along with three Chaffinches. A Sandwich Tern was in Mill Bay on 2nd April and a Rook arrived at Dale. Redwing, Song Thrush and Mistle Thrush were all seen on 4th, when a Common Buzzard flew low across the island and it was only after studying the photograph of this bird that we discovered a smaller image in the top-left corner of the frame - a Gyrfalcon, without doubt the same bird which was seen here several times last Autumn, and then later on Orkney Mainland.

A real surprise find by Paul Williams at Fernside on 9th was a Hoopoe - one of the most spectacular species recorded in the UK, and although elusive for long periods the bird was seen on and off for nine days.

The Hoopoe at Fernside fed regularly in the small yard, occasionally raising its crest to the delight of the occupants of the house! Wendy Groat discovered a bird of this species at Boondatoon in early April 1987.

Liz and Jean had a brilliant array of species at Mount Pleasant on 8th - Goldfinch, Siskin, Brambling, Chaffinch, Goldcrest and Robin - proving the value of garden cover here to migrant woodland/hedgerow species in Spring.

Jim and Michelle Chalmers saw the first Bonxies on Rothiesholm on 8th April around which time there was a sudden departure of virtually all the wintering Robins. A lone Swallow was perched on the hydro wire above the Lower Millfield drive next day, followed by the first Wheatear - seen by Christine and Brian at Cliffdale next day. A trickle of migrants were arriving - Chiffchaff at Castle on 10th, Dunnock at Ellerslie on 11th (a Whimbrel flew over Mill Bay same day), and a Grey Wagtail found in the ditch between Airy and Odiness by Hazel on 13th. Barbara Smith discovered a party of 3 Siskins in the garden at Strynie on 16th - when a Reed Bunting had taken the place of the Hoopoe at Fernside - and Colin had a newly-arrived Redwing feeding on the grass verge at The Hill. Several flocks of Golden Plover were moving north - all in superb summer plumage and a surprise find among one of the flocks at Kirbuster were two Ruff.

Most wintering raptors have now left the island but there have been odd sightings of Kestrel, Merlin, and Hen Harrier recently, and after a cold blow from the NW for several days a Swallow arrived in Whitehall Village on the relatively balmy evening of 23rd. Overnight SE winds and rain worked their magic again that night and next morning a Great Grey Shrike was discovered in the Linkshouse garden by Dennis and Wendy. It spent some time in the garden, where it was seen flying down to collect prey (almost certainly bees) from the lawn. This beautiful, long-tailed, strikingly-marked shrike is a winter-visitor to the UK but like many species is typically a 'short-stayer' during Spring migration.

Late news—on Sunday 25 April Sue reported seeing a Wheatear along the road to Cleat.

STRONSAY GP UPDATE—APRIL

By Karen Crichton

NHS Orkney Interim Community Health Partnership General Manager

I can confirm that the position has been offered to Drs Rosalind Neville-Smith and Roger Neville-Smith. Rosalind and Roger plan to undertake the main GP role for Stronsay on a job share basis. We are still in the process of recruiting to the 17 week per year remote and rural fellow role that will provide the cover arrangements for the new GP couple.

We do not have an official start date for Rosalind and Roger yet but will confirm this as soon as possible. I understand that the new GPs plan to stay in the NHS Orkney house on Stronsay to start off with and to make Stronsay the home for them and their children.
RONALD GREGORY (JACK) BOARD
29 Sep 1948—23 Feb 2010

As a small boy growing up in one of the roughest parts of London, Jack recalled being shown a black and white photograph depicting an older couple seated outside their small cottage—a cottage that was meant to be somewhere in a place called Orkney, people who were presumably his ancestors—and from the moment of looking at that photograph, he felt some strong and enduring connection to what was then such a faraway place. Until his actual arrival in Orkney with Simone in the mid-90’s, sprouting an impressively long beard, as some of you may well remember, Jack carried Orkney around in his heart as a vision, as a dream and goal. There was something about Orkney that deeply impressed him.

But in the between time, Jack lived out a rich and varied life. Maybe never just too rich in the materialistic sense—it was often quite the opposite, struggling to make ends meet—but rich for him because he had family around him. No matter the circumstances, Jack always seemed to have enough to be generous and was ever ready to help others.

From a very early age, Jack had to be resourceful. He was one of twelve children and times were hard. His mother decided it would be very practical if Jack would train to become a butcher, which he did for a while, but he also worked down at the docks before joining the army. After a time in Germany, and a particularly difficult experience in Ireland, Jack decided to discover for himself a better side to life. He yearned for a place of peace and beauty, and decided to leave London for the country, taking his wife Barbara and children—they eventually had five children together: Mark, Wayne, Heidi, Monya and Nelson. With his growing family he took up residence on “Jack”, a 72 foot, rather dilapidated canal boat (from which he acquired his commonly-used name). The boat had no engine and they had no horse so Jack would pull the boat himself—or get it going and let one of the boys do the pulling. As Mark recalls, every day they’d end up in a different place and his dad would set out looking for any kind of work that would keep food on the table. Jack eventually pulled that boat all the way from London to the Midlands.

After the death of his little daughter Heidi, the family settled down in a house where Jack used all of his creativity and resourcefulness to keep the family fed and clothed. His daughter Monya recalls her father occasionally putting up a sign outside the house advertising a sale and would sell just about whatever anyone was interested in, which meant that when his wife Barbara came home from her own work, she would often discover things that had been there in the morning had gone missing, but a bit of cash was there on the table. Jack often added to the house sales samples of his own baking, including his special biscuits, which, Monya remembers, must have exactly five chocolate bits on them, no more and no less.

Jack’s interests extended beyond these creative acts of breadwinning. He was always very athletic and expressed this in a variety of ways, ranging all the way from fencing and ballet to various circus acts and martial arts. He had a lifelong love for woodworking and expressed his artistic side most regularly through this medium.

Jack also had a deep love for family. He and his second wife Fay had three children together; Jamal, Azayla and Rowan. After his marriage with Fay came to an end, Jack and Simone discovered that their long friendship had developed into something more and, since the pull in the direction of Orkney was still with him, he and Simone began heading north. After living for a time in Argyll Jack began to feel more acutely the affects of the rheumatoid arthritis that had been a part of his life from the age of 35 so he and Simone decided to make the dream a reality; they packed up their bags and, accompanied by son Mark and two cats, they crossed the Pentland Firth and continued on to Stronsay.

Though plans to build their own house had been in the works for a while, it turned out that Hescombe became Jack’s last stopping place and it well-served its important role in filling out his vision, providing for him a place of peace and quiet, surrounded by great beauty. While he had loved all the trees in Scotland, he discovered that there were plenty of new things to appreciate in Orkney; Simone and Jack would often simply sit and soak in the silence, releasing themselves to both the incredible beauty and the deep peace of the place. Jack had a deep respect for God as Spirit and God as Creator and referred to what he felt in those moments as that “peace which passeth all understanding.” He was fascinated by faith and different religious expressions—he even tried out a bed of nails once.

Jack was not unused to the difficulties of life. He had weathered many a time of struggle and in this last year, as his illness progressed and the medications were increased, he had many moments that were not easy to face and deal with. But Jack stayed right where he wanted to be—at home in his cottage in Orkney. Though there is some relief in knowing his struggles have come to an end, there is no doubt that Jack will be missed.

STRONSAWAY’S SILVER DARLINGS—AGM
Stronsay’s Silver Darlings AGM will be held at 7:30pm on Friday 7th May 2010
in the Community Centre.
All interested parties are invited to attend.

SUGGEST A NAME

Following on from the success of Stronsay’s Silver Darlings first CD “The First Haul”, preparations are in hand for a second CD to be released later this year. This is your chance to give this CD a name.
Suggestions should be submitted to Colin McAlpine at The Hill, Stronsay (phone 616446) by Monday 31st May 2010.
All suggestions are welcome.
MONTHLY REPORT TO THE COMMUNITY
FROM TONY WITHERS LDO.

The month prior to the AGM is always a busy one for the Committee and I hope that this effort will be rewarded by a huge turnout! The reporting period that the AGM covers was during William Caithness’s watch as Development Officer so he will be reporting to members at the meeting. However I will be available after the meeting to answer any questions about what is going on to date (which is a bit harsh as he’s a hard act to follow!)

Funding is now in place to begin the first steps to purchasing the Haulage Yard and Light Haulage side of Jim Holland’s business. The land has been surveyed as has the Lobster Shed which is separately owned but also forms part of our plans for the Enterprise Zone. An architect is also on board as are other cogs in the wheel to make this thing happen.

I envisage that a public meeting will be called in June for all to see the plans and to answer any questions or concerns people may have. I would like to take this opportunity to dismiss any concerns expressed in some quarters that I will be running the Haulage Company. That is not the role of the CDO. My role is to facilitate the purchase, planning and funding of the project. Once this Community Interest Company is established it will be self managed as a proper business with profits made being either used to improve/maintain the service or to be passed onto the Trust to support other community projects.

On the Enterprise Zone it is planned to create five business units. I have had two firm notices of interest in these so if the idea of a brand spanking new business unit sounds like an opportunity for you let me know in complete confidence.

There are exciting times ahead for the development of Stronsay over the next five years. I have been charged with the task of producing the next development plan this year. The turbine means that this is no longer a wish list but a can do/will do list for the future. It will also reflect a joined up approach with input from our community partners, such as the Community Council and the Community Association.
TONY’S TIP OF THE MONTH!

Eday Development Trust are to operate a fast boat service supported by the Trusts on Sanday and Eday. Watch out for the timetable in the local press with the service hoping to commence in June. Please make every effort to support this venture to help make the pilot scheme a permanent one.

I bought a new pair of scales to help me with my diet plans. Very posh electronic ones that measure BMI etc and weigh up to 30 stones! So I go to step on them. Each time I do the digital read out goes blank! I cannot be more than 30 stones surely? Then it dawned on me—each time I step on them my belly casts a shadow over the solar panel that powers them! However, I have found a solution to the problem. I now stand backwards on them and view the readout between the cheeks of my bum as this seems to create less of a solar eclipse!

Hot off the press.....

Boiler Scrappage Scheme
Up to 5,000 households in Scotland will receive £400 towards the cost of a new boiler, under a new boiler scrappage scheme. Households with poor performing boilers which convert less than 70 per cent of fuel into heat, will qualify for cashback on a new energy saving model. Upgrading to a greener boiler will help households reduce heating costs by about a quarter and save £190 a year on fuel bills. From May 24, households will be able to apply online or over the phone through the Scottish Government's Energy Saving Scotland advice network.

Home Insulation Scheme
After the success of the Kirkwall and Stromness pilot areas it is now being announced that this scheme will be extended to other areas including Stronsay. This means homes will be offered loft and cavity wall insulation for free. It is likely that the Orkney Energy Agency will be managing the scheme but as more information becomes available it will be publicised.

THE MOTLEY CREW!

By Ellie from Newfield

We’ve a weird bunch of sheep
But we’ve only ourselves to blame;
Feeding them strawberry bon-bons
And giving them all a name.
Black treacle is their favourite,
They lick it off a spoon.
Me husband says he’s certain
I’m being ruled by the moon.
They sit in me byre at night
Burping and chewing their cud,
Waiting for birth of their lambs
And the trials of motherhood.
All their faces are sticky and black
Because treacle sticks like glue.
They could never win any prizes
They are such a motley crew.
They’ll sit all squashed together
Making rude, unmentionable smells
But when I look around them all
Me pride in them just swells.
I’m a shepherdess of sheep
Though they’d laugh if you told them that,
For they’ve seen me endless struggle
To even control me cat.
But they’ve had a lot of patience
And they’ve let me have me head.
And they even put up with me singing
As long as they’re penned in the shed.

“This twenty years as a shepherdess
To this motley crew of sheep.
Would I change it? Ask me again
At lambing time, with no sleep!”

Mothers making a clippy mat.
Grandad's walking the lines picking coal.
Granny is wearing the lino away
with her rocker, the poor old soul.
The gas mantle is starting to flicker
as the meter is just about done.
When we have no more pennies to put in our house in the dark isn't fun.
All the crawlies come out in the dark,
beetles, slugs, spiders and mice.
But all these old houses here have them,
it's not that we are crawling with lice.
Although we have not got much money
everythings nipping clean.
Mothers pinny is white like her doorstep,
the way it has always been.
Dad is in Europe fighting
and we are starting to win the war.
Mam prays he will come hope safely
so she'll not have to fear any more.
At least the bombs have stopped falling now,
no need for the shelter at night.
The Germans have lost the war in the air,
now we know we'll be alright.
Hurry up Gramps with the fire coal,
it's nice to have some heat;
Watching the shadows dance on the walls
while warming our freezing feet.
I hope the police don't see Grandad
while he's picking up coal from the track.
The steam engine men always throw off lumps
when they see him with his sack.
In time things might get better,
who knows what lies in store?
Meanwhile we will do the best we can until Dad walks in the door.
LITTLE LIMPET’S BEDTIME STORY
By Christine Richings.

The little limpets were looking forwards to their bedtime story, they lay quietly under their seaweed blankets big eyes watching as grandfather limpet settled down close by. They loved it when he told them a story as he did not read from a book but made up one of his own, as usual he coughed a couple of times to clear his throat before starting.

The story he told was one of stars that twinkled so brightly that they helped a lost limpet to find his way home, he told them that the stars in the sky were called different names some formed patterns and shapes they were called the Bear, the Plough, Leo the lion, Pegasus the flying horse, the Eagle and the Scorpion; there were many more but the North star was one of the brightest, it was always in the same place in the night sky.

This limpet had often sat looking skywards on clear nights listening to his uncle talking about the stars and their names. At the time he did not realise how useful this would be to him for one day he had gone to visit relatives and was enjoying himself so much he did not realize that the time was getting late. They told him that he could stay with them for the night but he assured them he would get home before dark. On the way he tripped and hurt his knee it was very painful he could no longer run but could only walk very slowly. Darkness soon came and he felt frightened. He sat down and wanted to cry but looking up he saw that it was a clear night and all the stars were coming out. He remembered what his uncle had told him and soon found the star he wanted—the North star. He set off following it and before long came to the rocky shore and his home. Grandfather limpet stopped speaking and waited a while for one of the little limpets to say something but all was quiet. He smiled to himself and began to think of what bedtime story he might tell another night.
