THE EMPOWERING COMMUNITIES PROJECT

The Empowering Communities Project is being progressed to investigate opportunities for local communities to participate in the design and delivery of a number of services currently provided by Orkney Islands Council (OIC). A pilot project is being taken forward in consultation with Community Councils, other community groups and partnership agencies including Highlands & Islands Enterprise.

Two pilot areas, Papa Westray and Stronsay, have been selected to participate in the first stage of the project. The pilot project will be assessed over a three year period, with the potential to roll this out in other areas as it develops.

This innovative partnership between OIC, Community Councils and others could bring many benefits to island communities including:

- new employment opportunities;
- increased sustainability;
- improved access to locally-based services; and
- the potential to develop skills within the local workforce.

The project should also deliver significant efficiencies across Council Services.

The majority of Orkney's Community Councils currently maintain kirkyards for OIC and this project will see Community Councils involved in shaping and delivering a range of other Council services. The type of services that Community Councils could become involved in will require ongoing community consultation, but could include:

- road maintenance;
- pier operations and maintenance;
- upkeep of core paths;
- airfields;
- refuse and recycling;
- transport; and
- property maintenance.

There will be an opportunity for Community Councils, Development Trusts, Community Associations and other local groups to play a part in the project. This will build capacity and will foster close and more effective working relationships. Each group may play a different role but collectively they will enhance the sustainability of their community. Local input could provide a new way to support and empower communities across Orkney, developing services which are more responsive to local demand, while also creating a more efficient means of delivery for the Council.

In Stronsay, as part of the Empowering Communities project OIC along with Stronsay Community Council have progressed the refurbishment and upgrading of the Fishmart and the contract for these works have now been awarded and the contractor will be on site soon.

In Papa Westray the Community Council identified maintenance required on stiles within the core path network. The work was organised under the Empowering Communities project and a local contractor was awarded the contract. On completion of the maintenance on the stiles the labour and materials were funded by OIC.

It is anticipated that an Island Link Officer will be appointed in each of the pilot island areas in January 2015. As part of the Democratic Services team this post is being established to develop and support the project at a local level.

LETTER FROM SCHOOL PLACE

In 86 years, Sanday has never won the Parish Cup. At the Sanday Harvest Home, Jocky Wood proffered advice on how a change of goalie could make all the difference. He suggested recruiting Malcolm Lennie's prize-winning Suffolk yowe, Killer Queen. She'd be strategically directed back and forth across the goalmouth with Neigarth's vegetables, and encouraged to leap up to the crossbar to deflect the high shots by Rosemary Newton's fruit scones spread with Sanday Honey. I fear this might be sending a lamb to the slaughter — particularly if my bees take exception to this use of their honey!

At Westray's community council meeting, drink-driving continues to be an issue -- a matter of concern on other islands too. A problem we have in the North Isles is a lack of a police presence in the form of special constables. In the whole of the ward there are only four, and half of those are on Papay! I have been in touch with the police commander for the Highlands & Islands, and, as a result, he is looking into running a recruitment campaign specifically for the Isles, with training requirements tailored to the area. In the meantime, if anyone is interested in applying to become a special constable, there is information on Police Scotland's website at: <http://www.scotland.police.uk/recruitment/special-constables/>

I was one of three councillors to attend the Orkney Youth Conference. It was a shame that the bad weather and cancelled ferry sailings prevented pupils coming in from the Isles' Junior Highs. I sat in on several of the workshops, learning, among other things, a lot I didn't know about the Young Scot Card and its uses, for example, that it makes you eligible for some free journeys on Orkney Ferries (weather permitting!). I am a great fan of Alex Leonard and his "Giddy Limit" cartoon strip in The Orcadian, so I was delighted to join the workshop in which he taught us how to draw "Davo". You can see my attempt, below:

At the UHI Foundation meeting in Inverness, the Deputy Principal thanked me for the loan of my doctoral bonnet as a temporary UHI doffing cap at the Orkney graduations, and its use was formally acknowledged in the Orkney College report presented to the College Management Council. I have also been busy on the College Management Council's Quality Working Group. At the Education, Leisure & Housing meeting I voted in favour of free school meals for all nursery pupils, but it was defeated by one vote on an amendment by the convener. I shared Cllr John Richards's relief that the Strategic Housing Investment Plan (SHIP) had not gone under the originally-proposed title of Strategic Housing Investment Target ...

Somebody asked me how many of the meetings I attend are confidential. The short answer is any meeting (or part of a meeting) that is not explicitly open to the public. (The general meetings of the Council and committee and sub-committee meetings are open to the public except for items containing information exempted from publication by virtue of Schedule 7A of the Local Government (Scotland) Act 1973.) Meetings falling into this category that I've participated in this month are those of the Change Programme Board, the Members' Forum, and Staff Appeals Committee; a video conference with the Scottish Air Ambulance Service, and our 2nd budget-setting seminar. I am, however, allowed to report from the first of these the launch of a public survey, which, among other things, is hoping to gain an improved understanding of the ways in which the public wishes to engage with the Council, and to gather ideas for service improvements. It can be found online at: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/s/OICChangeProgramme>

This month I have also attended a meeting of the Human Resources Sub-Committee, and the annual joint meeting of the Licensing Board and the Local Licensing Forum.

On the 10th December I shall be in Shapinsay for their community council meeting.

The festive season will soon be upon us, so I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

Stephen

OLD CALENDARS THAT CAN MAKE A COMEBACK IN

2015

Happy will be the folk who heeded my thrifty tip back in in 2010 and put away their 2009 calendars for redeployment in 2015. But for those who missed (or ignored) this advice, all is not lost, as there are calendars from other years that can come to your rescue and save you all the effort and expense of purchasing new ones.

This year we have been commemorating the centenary of the outbreak of the Great War. Perhaps you found a 1914 calendar to put in an exhibition marking the event. Well, now you can bring it home again and hang it on your wall for the whole of 2015.

Maybe the Skea family of Sanday kept a calendar from 1970, the year Margaret Skea of North Myre celebrated her own centenary. If they did, they can use it again (potentially for the sixth time).

Staying on Sanday, 1903 (another year calendrically identical to 2015) saw the passing away of the radical Rev Matthew Armour, the first of three Orkney councillors to bide (to date) at the West Manse.

And on the subject of councillors, in 1942 the Secretary of State for Scotland opened new council offices at 6 Broad Street, Kirkwall (where “The Reel” is now situated). Far fewer bureaucrats could fit in that building than occupy the current council offices at School Place! Those were the days ... well worth having kept a calendar for.

Of course, back then School Place was still a school, renamed “Kirkwall Grammar School” by the Education Committee in 1931. That year’s calendar is also valid for 2015.

There are two years significant to St Magnus’ Cathedral whose calendars can be re-used next year: 1925, when the two skeletons discovered during restoration work were identified to be those of St Magnus and St Rognvald, and 1987, the building’s 850th anniversary. Both Her Majesty The Queen and Her Majesty The Queen Mother visited Orkney for the anniversary celebrations, as did King Olav V of Norway, so many people are bound to have kept a calendar from that year. And there are surely plenty of calendars around from 1953, saved as a souvenir of Her Majesty’s coronation.

Other suitable calendars are those for 1959, the year Orcadian poet, novelist and translator, Edwin Muir died, and 1981, a decennial census year in which Orkney’s population was found to have increased for the first time in the 20th century.

How many connoisseurs kept a 1998 calendar to go with their Highland Park bicentenary whisky? Bring both out for the New Year!

And at Hogmanay, when you take down your 2014 calendars, do not forget to store them away in a safe place to use again in 2025.

VANISHING LADY

By Ellie from Newfield

She's the mistress of disguise
Now cloaked in an eerie mist,
Moving around at liberty
Whilst every grass blade is kissed.
Of course she's many disguises
Very often all worn the same day.
But she's a mind to caress at her leisure
And this is such a perfect way.
How she loves to hug those valleys,
Cleansing all within her sight.
Or she's draped across the high grounds
In sheer gossamer of misty white.
Like a cushion of candy floss
Yet always without your reach.
She's silent in this mood swing
But still so willing to teach.
Beasts in the meadows graze on,
Unaware they are wrapped in her arms
Enfolded, it would seem, in her blanket.
She's a lady of so many charms,
It's almost as if she's healing,
Soothing you might say.
Needing to offer some comfort
For the thrashing of yesterday.
For then she was stormy and wild,
Blowing herself to full swing.
Unpredictable, as is her character,
For who knows what next she might bring.
But in the mist she's wearing now
In the silence that is pure gold
Is she soothing us, our bruises?
She delivered us, ten fold.
Mother Nature is dressed for caring
In misty cloak of soothing balm.
A blanket of angel hair
She dons in the need for calm.
Like a bride in a floating veil
Passing through the churchyard
Lingering only for moments
Whilst portraying a serene façade.
Having caressed the hilltops at leisure
And leaving the valleys below.
In your disguise of Vanishing Lady
I'm left wondering "Where did you go?"
